History

The Shih Tzu Breed is perhaps the oldest dog breed in the world. They are originally from China and 6th century A.D. Chinese paintings shows Shi Tzu-like dogs. The Shih Tzu breed was house pets during the Ming Dynasty and the Chinese highly prized and guard them fiercely. The name Shih Tzu means Ã¢ï¿½ï¿½small lionÃ¢ï¿½ï¿½.

Appearance

They are known for their abundant and flow of long hair. They have a chrysanthemum face and a typical Shih Tzu breed has a rounded head with long bread and moustache, a black nose and a short muzzle. The eyes of the Shih Tzu breed are dark, round and wide-set. The ears are pendant and are buried in hairs. They have a longer frame and the tails are curled over the back. The Shih Tzu breed comes in different colors.

Character

The Shih Tzu breed is small, lively and quite intelligent. They have a very noble and have a proud posture, may be because of their aristocratic ancestry. Sometimes they can translate pride and haughtiness, other times into politeness and courageousness. They have eyes that display a very warmth and human like quality. Of all the toy breeds, the Shih Tzu breed is the least delicate.

Nature

The Shih Tzu breed is often taken for as a companion. They love to be mostly inside with their owners, though they are outgoing, self-assured, intense and alert. Shih Tzu breed gets along very well with the older children and other pets. They are quite noble in character, but they are excellent as a watchdog. They love attention and can have a bad temper if left alone for a long time. They can be quiet and docile, but they love to play a lot. They love to be treated with royalty and are easily spoiled.

Activity

Shih Tzu breed loves to go out on daily walk or play indoor games. They are very well suited for condominium or apartment dwelling. However, since they love playing outside, a fenced yard is ideal for them.
