

Protecting Your Dance Studio with Insurance Coverage

Dancing is a great way to exercise as well as to express yourself. These are some of the reasons people are getting attracted to dance studios to learn the art of dance. With the number of lawsuits due to mishaps on the rise, it is very necessary that you get your dance studio covered with insurance.

Is it important? The answer to that question is one big yes. It is the best way to protect yourself from any financial losses which you might incur due to property damages or a liability claim if a dancer gets injured and sues you. If you do not have your dance studio insured, then you could actually end up paying for all this from your very own pocket and this could cost you lots of money.

If you own a dance studio get appropriate insurance to cover it all up. A basic insurance would cover:

- * Contents and equipments
- * Building
- * Business interruptions
- * Employer liability
- * Public liability

There are many different types of dance studio insurances. Make sure that you select the one that is most appropriate for you and your business. Be sure to check on the following before you get your insurance:

- * If the insurance provides a complete coverage for your studio
- * If the company is equipped with staff to handle emotional claims involving children
- * Check for the rating of the insurance company
- * If they have staff who can help you make your studio safer

Remember that normal domestic studio coverage will not cover you even if the studio is a part of your home.

A dance studio insurance usually is given at $1,000,000 with a per occurrence of $3,000,000. The coverage provides protection for your studio, the owner, the instructor, the employee against claims of bodily injury, property damage, advertising injury liability, personal injury liability.

Dance studio insurance can be compared to a pair of dancing shoes. A good one will lead you through a smooth performance.

About the Author

Johney Maron is a part time author as well as an expert in event insurance. Anthony Insurance Services specialize in dance studio insurance, and special event insurance. Accidents can happen at anytime, and dance studios are no exception! When people are participating in a physical activity, sometimes this can result in injury. Let Anthony insurance help you run your dance studio worry free with the right dance studio insurance coverage you need.

Source: <http://www.kiarticle.info>